In three of the last four Concacaf Champions Cup matches in which the Seattle Sounders conceded the opening goal, the team did not lose (D2 L1), this is the first one in that span where they managed to win.

The Sounders had less possession than the Whitecaps in this match (40% to 60%), fewer total shots (11 to 14), and fewer shots on target (4 to 5), but posted a higher expected goals total (1.3 xG to 1.2 xG).

Jeevan Badwall (Whitecaps) opened the scoring tonight against the Sounders and became the second-youngest player to score for the club in the Concacaf Champions Cup (20 years, 8 days) since 2016, behind Alphonso Davies (15 years, 317 days).

The Sounders are the third team in the current Concacaf Champions Cup to have two different goal scorers come off the bench (Danny Musovski and Paul Rothrock). The others are FC Cincinnati (Ademar Chavez and Stefan Chirila vs. O&M FC) and San Diego FC against Pumas UNAM (Alex Mighten and David Vázquez).

In seven of the eight times the Sounders have hosted the second leg of a Concacaf Champions Cup tie, they have advanced to the next round since the format change in 2008. They are unbeaten in those matches (W7 D1).

The Sounders' equalizer in this match, scored by Danny Musovski, marked their fifth headed goal in the Concacaf Champions Cup since 2017. Among MLS teams in that span, only Philadelphia (7) has scored more goals via headers in the competition.
